Here comes the big 50th Wellyfest

Hi Everyone

Here's your first look at the folks who will be entertaining, inspiring and educating you at this year's Wellington Folk Festival over Labour weekend (24 to 27 October). It's an even longer list than usual and all these performers will be featured on our various stages over the 2 fully programmed days of the festival.

This year's is going to be a monster festival... as befits our half century celebration. Rather than build up to a single final "showcase" concert, this year we are presenting 3 celebration concerts: Looking back - featuring great contributors to this festival, the Wellington and New Zealand folk scene over the last 50 years; Looking Forward - will showcase current and potential stars of the next 50 years, and the Sunday night concert which will be a great closing show.

Along with our usual programme we've added an extra marquee venue for open mic and blackboard performances. As usual there will be workshops where you can brush up your skills, gain confidence or have a go at something new. If the choices prove too hard you can head to the popular Balladeer cafe venue with its invitation concert programme. You can just sit in there at any time to see a great and varied series of short concerts from new performers, well known locals, festival regulars and even some of the main festival guests.

Speaking of main festival guests... we've got a packed lineup and this would be a very long email if I profiled all of them.... so to save email space here's a list: You'll see old names, new names. locals and some from exotic (or at least long distance) locations. Nearly all have a connection either as previous performers or attendees at the Wellington Folk Festival or as regular performers in Wellington. All of our headline overseas performers have played at this festival:

Al Young, Bear Cat, Bill Morris, Bohemian Nights, Chinook, Into the East, Jade, Joseph Balfe, Kevin McLoughlin, Martin & Eliza Carthy, Mike Harding, Millennium Hippies, Peter Dyer, The Federal String Band, The Jimmies, The Madillionaires, Windy City Strugglers

Our guests have profiles and links to their web sites on the festival website so head there to find out more..... www.wellingtonfolkfestival.org.nz.

Our facebook page www.facebook.com/Wellyfest has the most regular and interactive updates... like us to get or share all the news as it breaks!

Registrations will open 15 August. Early bird discounts available till 30 September. The first exciting and participative event will be voting for The Peoples' Choice - our facebook competition to allow you to choose a concert guest for the festival.

Look forward to seeing you at Labour weekend..... as usual, the festival will be held at the Brookfield Outdoor Education Centre at the end of Moores Valley Rd, Wainuiomata.

Cheers on behalf of the Committee
Gerard Hudson

Open to all.
Friendly welcome assured
